Prayer Corner

So, there's this viral Facebook reel going around that accuses a Christian school of—wait for it—cheating in a basketball game. Yes, you read that right. Cheating. At a Christian school. If you need a good laugh today, I've got the link below, but let me break it down for you.

This kid is venting to his mom about how they lost to a home-school team. And of all the schools to lose to, it was the Christian one! But here's where it gets good—he insists they had an unfair advantage. Why? Because, according to him, they had the Lord on their side. Yup, you heard it right: divine intervention on the basketball court. He's convinced that every time one of the Christian school players got hurt, Jesus must've been chilling under the bleachers, performing quick healings, because they always bounced right back into the game.

And then there was Joey. The kid had no problem guarding him. But who can guard the Lord? I mean, come on, He created the heavens and the earth on day one, and on day two, He was definitely shooting hoops. Because He is really good at it. The kid even overheard the coach thanking God after the game, which sealed the deal for him—they had help from above!

Now, while this whole scenario is hilarious, there's actually a lot of truth buried in it. As Christians, we do have what seems like an "unfair" advantage. And it's the kind of "cheat code" everyone should want. 1 Corinthians 2:9-10 says, "Eye has not seen, nor ear heard ... all that God has prepared for those who love Him." Sounds like a game plan I'd want to be a part of, right?

As a believer ...

God will always be with you.

He will always love you.

He will always forgive your sins.

He will always listen to you.

He will always comfort you.

He will always provide for you.

He will always remember you.

He will always work on your behalf.

He will always lead you with love, power, and wisdom.

He will always bless your obedience to Him.

He will always come through for you.

He will always answer your prayers.

And when you wait on the Lord, you can know for certain that the best is yet to come ... always. (taken from Charles Stanley's devotion)

And yes, He answers prayers—even the ones you thought He didn't hear.

When you're with the Lord, you've got the ultimate advantage. So if people think it's "cheating" to have Jesus on your team? Let them. Just invite them to the winning side.

Here's that link I promised: Facebook Reel.

Thank you! Have an incredible week.
